Elba Police Chief Troy Staley remains on administrative leave with pay

Mayor says a hearing with Staley set for July 7th

by Linda Hodge, Editor

During the Monday, June 26, Elba City Council meeting Mayor Tom Maddox briefly addressed Police Chief Troy Staley being placed on administrative leave.

"We all know Chief Troy Staley was placed on administrative leave with pay on June 17," Maddox said. "All we will talk about tonight is I will say that I do have a hearing set for next week with Mr. Staley on July 7th."

While city officials have not publicly revealed a reason for Staley being placed on administrative leave, there have been numerous reports that a protection from elder abuse motion was filed in the Covington County court system against Staley. According to reports, the complaint was filed Thursday, June 15, against Staley alleging he entered an Andalusia home where he was staying and began to "knock stuff off the wall." The 61-year-old female complainant that filed the protection order has the same last name as Staley.

Also, a motion filed Wednesday, June 21, in Covington County alleges the above mentioned female Staley subject was arrested June 13th and charged with domestic violence - third degree and menacing. That motion listed Harold (Troy) Staley as the victim.

In the interim, with Staley on administrative leave from his police chief duties in Elba, Lieutenant Shayne Arnett is serving as acting police chief for Elba, and he provided an update to council members for the police department during Monday evening's council meeting.

Arnett said activity for the department was pretty routine, but he did note that the department's new police car had been picked up and brought 'home' to Elba earlier in the day Monday.

Also, Arnett confirmed the department had one new officer set to begin work on Wednesday of this week.

Elba City Council and W&E Board vote to give employees additional paid holiday on July 3rd this year

by Linda Hodge, Editor

The Elba City Council and Elba Water & Electric Board each voted Monday night, June 26, during their respective meetings to give employees an extra day off next week for the Independence Day holiday.

Motions were passed during the meetings to give employees Monday, July 3, as an extra paid day off for the holiday for 2023 only. July 4th already is an annual paid holiday for employees.

In providing the additional day [July 3] this year, it gives employees a four-day weekend.

"I know some communities in the Wiregrass are doing this for their employees - not all, but some," council member Jane Brunson said. "I think this is a nice, small perk we can give our employees."

Mayor Tom Maddox agreed. He said it might hurt the crowd for the city's July 4th event if some choose to "go out of town" for the long holiday weekend, but he said he believes giving the extra day for the holiday would be a nice perk for employees.

Unanimous consent from the voting panels awarded July 3 as an extra day off for employees for 2023.

Also, during both the council meeting and water and electric board meeting, it was voted on to allow employees subject to outdoor work to begin working 6 a.m. - 3 p.m. This new work schedule began Wednesday, June 28, and will continue through the end of September.

Mayor Maddox said this is something the city did last year when "we started getting indecently hot weather."

This change in work schedule only applies to employees that work outdoors. It will not affect work hours for any office employees.

increased cognitive function, vocabulary, memory, empathy, and decreased levels of stress.

"The goals of our book vending machine are to inspire and foster a love for reading among our students," Driggers said. "We aim to engrain within our students a passion for reading by celebrating their accomplishments with books and continuing their reading successes."

She said this was evidenced recently by the Kinston's ACAP scores with a 98 percent proficiency rate in second grade and a 92 percent proficiency rate in third grade.

"Additionally, by providing our students with books they can own, we will provide a layer of engagement opportunities for our children and the educators, parents, and caregivers to nurture and support them and reinforce the value of literacy," Hawthorne added. "Our new book vending machine reinforces the school's 'Read at Home Plan' mandated by the Alabama Literacy Act."

The books from the vending machine will be utilized as positive behavioral supports and academic incentives, according to administrators. Students will be rewarded for exemplary accomplishments, including but not limited to perfect attendance, improvement in academics, meeting benchmarks, and good citizenship.

The vending machine was purchased through district funding sources, and the books were purchased by the Kinston School Education Foundation.

Coffee County School System among top systems in state for ACAP Reading Assessment

by Linda Hodge, Editor

The Alabama Department of Education recently released numbers for the 2022-2023 ACAP Reading Assessment - testing, and the Coffee County School System scored high in the assessment.

Overall, the system tested at 91.33 percent of second graders on or above grade level in reading while third graders tested at 88.89 percent on or above grade level.

"Our focus has been on teaching the child and not a curriculum," said Coffee

County Schools superintendent Kelly Cobb.

Out of 196 second graders tested systemwide, only 17 [8.67 percent] were below grade level with their reading on the ACAP test. The 91.33 percent on or above grade level with reading represented 179 students.

For third graders in the Coffee County System, 207 students were tested. Only 23 [11.11 percent] were below grade level. The 88.89 percent on or above grade level represented 184 students systemwide.

Taking a closer look at individual schools, Kinston had 41 second graders tested with only one student scoring below grade level for a 97.56 percent of students on or above grade level in reading. The school tested 39 third grader and only three were below grade level, which meant 92.31 percent of third graders at Kinston scored on or above grade level in reading.

"We aim to engrain within our students a passion for reading by celebrating their accomplishments," said Kinston principal Megan Driggers. "This was evidenced by their ACAP scores!"

Kinston Elementary gets new book vending machine

by Linda Hodge, Editor

Kinston Elementary School held a ribbon cutting Thursday morning, June 22, for a new vending machine located inside the school, but it does not dispense sodas nor chips. Instead, when students place their token into the vending machine, it will distribute a book!

"A sense of fun and expectancy is created when a vending machine's coils twist to deliver a treat," said Kinston principal Megan Driggers. "Now, our students will be able to experience this same excitement as they insert a golden token and wait for a literary treat to clang in the bottom bin."

This comes from the Inchy Bookworm Book Vending Machine that was "opened" for business last Thursday morning at the elementary school. The machine stocks more than 300 books with a variety of genres and reading levels.

"The machine is one of the first of its kind in Coffee County," Kinston vice principal Crystal Hawthorne said.

Reading is a foundational skill that has a tremendous impact on one's success in life, but it is also fun.

Hawthorne said reading has many benefits, such as

July 4th is just around the corner. Entirely too many people consider this just a day off from work and fail to appreciate the importance of the freedoms that continue to be celebrated annually on this day. Enjoy your day off, but please take a few moments to give thanks to our ancestors who made these cherished freedoms possible.

Throwing phones at entertainers during their performance... dumb. Somehow a certain element of society has decided it is 'cool' to hit entertainers with various objects, included food and of course recently a cell phone. Now someone has more money (or less sense) than yours truly because every cellphone we have had cost more than most of the tickets to the top name entertainer events. That is secondary, because throwing anything (except money) makes absolutely no sense and shouts "REDNECK!"

Lab grown meats! Recently the USDA gave official approval for Upside Foods and Good Meat to start selling their lab-grown chicken products in the U.S.!!! It is not in the stores just yet, but 'it is coming'. They call it 'cultivated meat'. The next thing we expect to hear is someone's claim that it causes cancer - not today nor tomorrow but upon the delivery of the product to the grocery stores - in the not-so-distant future. OH, a few foreign countries have had these products on a limited basis for several years.

The ongoing confusion in Russia has been interesting to say the least. Frankly, it came as no surprise that that guy Yevgeny Prigozhin, head of the private army that has carried much of Putin's dirty work around the world, especially in Ukraine, got the itch to 'take over' the mother country last weekend. We don't know exactly what happened, but his troops were rapidly headed up the road to Moscow when suddenly they stopped, and he announced they were withdrawing, and the takeover effort was itself was apparently over! Reports in some news outlets indicate there were threats of harm against the families of the attacking troops. The news announcements show him exiled to a neighboring country and his troops handed a peace offering of freedom without jail OR a position fighting with the Russian regular army. All that stuff about the coup attempt is news today and contradicted tomorrow. What will happen next is anyone's guess and we have not even an opinion of what that will be.

The Elba Splash Pad was in full operational mode Saturday as Tiger Town Park was brimming with hot citizens, both young and not-so-young, needing to cool off as they prepared to enjoy their picnic lunches. We will not try to estimate the number of people in the park but be assured it was 'a bunch'. You can expect to see more of the same as America moves through the holidays.

The Elba Police Chief situation has not changed from the "suspension with pay" but Mayor Tom Maddox announced at the Monday night council meeting that a hearing has been scheduled with the chief in early July on the issue.

Elba's own Jay Wilson (pictured above) competed last weekend in the 74th Annual Press Thornton Future Masters golf event held in Dothan, Ala. The 15-year-old Elba High School student is the son of Josh and Jill Wilson of Elba. This was Wilson's first time competing at the Future Masters. Wilson said he was honored to have the opportunity to compete against some of the most talented junior golfers out there with 38 states and five foreign countries represented at this year's event. There were 240 junior golfers, ages 15-18, competing. Wilson was one of the youngest. His dad, Josh, said Jay accomplished his goal of making the cut and advancing to the final round. Only 104 of the total 240 golfers advanced. "While the final round did not turn out like we had hoped, we could not be more proud of how Jay continued to grind and persevere," Josh said.

Little Bean [and the Gang] heard five words used together that no one wanted to hear earlier this week. She visited her veterinarian for her annual wellness check, and he said, "she needs to lose some weight."

Little Bean's world came crashing down around her! Cuzin Lou Lou had feared those words would soon be spoken, and the time finally arrived.

While Lou Lou is guilty same as Sister and Papa, those two are having just as hard of a time adjusting to the new diet for Little Bean as she is having. In the past, the little monster could flash those 'wanting eyes' in either the direction of Papa or Sister, and she would get exactly what she wanted from the treat box. Even worse, when Papa would make his late-night trips into the kitchen, Bean would perk up from wherever she was resting and anxiously await his return to the family room because that meant she was more than likely getting something too.

Well...not so much anymore! The snacks have been limited, the meals have been reduced, and if anything comes Little Bean's way from the table, it now must either be veggies or lean meat!

During the first night of the new norm for Little Bean, Sister actually went to bed early to avoid those 'wanting eyes' should they come her way. She decided being out of sight's way was the best way to handle it!

Truthfully, Bean is doing okay so far...she hasn't bitten off anyone's finger or toe out of retaliation for not receiving all the sweet potato treat's her tummy desires...but, that has not stopped her from trying to get them.

There was one bit of good news for the Yonder Gang and Little Bean from the vet. He said her teeth looked really good, and he asked if she receives a dental treat. When told that Little Bean gets a dental every day, he said, "Good! Keep it up!"

Whew...at least the gang is doing one thing right, and that is one less thing for the little monster to get upset over. She is happily still receiving her dental treat every night.

Let's just hope the good overcomes the bad, and Little Bean accepts her new reality! She's got some pounds to shed whether she likes it or not...

Until next time...God Bless and Keep Smiling!

May I Ask a Cemetery Owner/Operator to Help Me Find a Gravesite?

This is a common conundrum: You wish to pay your respects to a deceased loved one or ancestor and you know which cemetery they are buried in. What you don't know is exactly where their gravesite is located - and in vast, sprawling cemeteries, this can pose a big logistical problem. The question is, who can you ask to help you find the grave you are looking for? Is it proper etiquette to contact the cemetery owner or operator to provide you with some direction?

The short answer to this question is yes, though you may not need to speak with a cemetery owner directly. These days, a lot of cemeteries have websites where you can get the lay of the land and develop some sense of where your loved one is buried. Often, this is the quickest way to find the information you're looking for.

But if the cemetery doesn't have a website, or you still need assistance, it's perfectly fine to contact the cemetery's owner or operator. It's best to gather some key information before you do so, however - including the full name of the deceased and if possible, the year of their birth and the year of their death. This simply helps the cemetery owner to locate your loved one more quickly.

An alternative is to reach out to the local funeral home; even if it's not affiliated with the cemetery in question, it may have access to records that show where your loved one is buried.

In short, there's always a way to identify the final resting place of your loved one, so never hesitate to ask!

CHURCH & AREA NEWS

PASTOR'S CORNER

by Steve Reneau, Pastor

Elba United Methodist Church

I invite you to read Philippians 4:4-9, and read the article below as a devotional.

I cannot believe that I have served in Elba for the past five years! I have loved my time in this community, and getting to work with the city and area churches. This time of farewell calls to mind this passage from Paul that he writes to the church in Philippi. His time with them in ministry is ending, and he reflects upon his relationship with his first church in Europe. This church has meant so much to Paul. It supported and encouraged him throughout his whole ministry. Yet, now Paul is departing, and he leaves the church with words to not worry, but to rejoice and be at peace. He tells them to focus on the excellent, the things worthy of praise, those good things they have done in ministry together. Paul then beautifully tells them, "keep doing the things that you have learned and received and heard and seen in me." I hope in my season in Elba, I have preached and lived the Good News of Jesus Christ among you.

In times like these, I am reminded of a book by Dr. Ira Byock titled The Four Things that Matter Most, in which, as a hospice physician, he speaks to four recurring phrases he hears over and over again: Please forgive me; I forgive you; I love you; Thank you. Byock believes communicating these feelings to those around us are imperative, and encourages everyone to be more mindful of saying them throughout their lives instead of just at the end of them. Forgiveness is one of the hardest things to do in life. There are people in our lives that we are not quite ready to forgive, and I bet there are people in our lives that are not quite ready to forgive us. As a Pastor, whenever I do premarital counseling, I always ask the couple if they fight with each other. The responses are quite amusing. The only response that gives me concern is when a couple says that they never have arguments. This either heralds to me an imbalance in the relationship or the couple has not lived life together in a deep way. When people interact together disagreements will occur, we are only human. Alexander Pope once said, "To err is human, to forgive divine." As people of faith, we are called to live a life that looks like God, that looks like the divine. We are called to be a people of forgiveness to those who deserve it and to those who do not. Please forgive me, and I forgive you.

I John 4 tells us that God is love, and as people of faith we should be first and foremost known by our love. I have loved my time with you, and I have loved the city of Elba. It is my hope and prayer that the community goes from strength to strength. I know it has an amazing foundation of people who have banded together in tragic times to love and care for one another. Thank you for letting me be one of the pastors in this community. Thank you for the time we have shared together, and may God add a special blessing upon Elba.

Intolerable Tolerance

Twenty-first century society is bending over backward to grant the moral freedom of choice to every soul, no matter how a person's choices may offend God, endanger lives, and/or contaminate the culture. It is called "tolerance." Calling sin "sin" is viewed as judgmental and unsophisticated. Standing for God's absolutes is ridiculed as "primitive" or at least "ultra-conservative." All manner of perversions, obscenity, exploitation, and godlessness is tolerated in the name of "freedom" and "choice."

The moral uncertainty of our times is not so very different from that of Amos' Day. His neighbors, too, were tolerating all kinds of sinful and ungodly behavior. They needed to be told of impending punishment for their transgressions. God warned them that He would deliver them into the hands of their enemies because they were so disobedient and unrepentant. So called "tolerance" eventually becomes intolerable to God. True, He is patient with us, for He wants no one to perish [2 Peter 3:9]. But, justice ultimately will prevail. Sin will earn its wages [Romans 6:23]. Unforgiven unbelievers will suffer "the second death" [Revelation 21:8]. Who, like Amos, will warn them of what is coming? Who will call them to repentance? — R.W.B.

We joined Lawson and his Mom last weekend for a short visit to an indoor water park and play area at LaGrange, Georgia. Lawson, a friend of his and his Mom ignored the drops and turns to try out all the water slides, and while I will admit I didn't try out the slides, I did get in three of the pools and enjoyed the getaway. Hey, it's summer, which means it's okay to get wet, even at my age.

For what it is worth....

 The Alabama Sports Writers Association announced its annual 'All-State' high school baseball teams recently with the brother combo of Jayden and Jordan Parks gaining first team honors, as well as Bulldog teammate Jon Bush and Kinston's Owen Patterson. The Parks brothers were key cogs in the Bulldog machine that helped it reach the state finals, while Patterson was the big stick in the line-up down at Kinston as the 'Dogs rolled into the playoffs. All the fans at both schools knew the numbers of the players and sat up anytime they took the field, and it is great that now the state knows of their skills. Congratulations!

 Any sports fan that has ever purchased a ticket to a college football or basketball game can tell you that the world of college sports is a multi-million dollar business. That fact was made clear again recently when the nationwide newspaper USA Today released its annual database of college athletics financial figures. The figures, for the 2022-2023 seasons, revealed that the rich are only getting richer and the rest are falling farther and farther behind. Topping the revenue list was Ohio State with $251.6 million, while Alabama came in third with a sports revenue of $214.4 million and Auburn in 11th with revenue of $174.6 million. Nine of the top twenty money makers were from the SEC, and when you look ahead and add Texas and Oklahoma to the list, the SEC has seven of the top ten. The revenue income of the other colleges in the state included South Alabama $39.1 million, UAB $38.4 million, Troy $33.4 million, Jacksonville State $20.3 million, Alabama State $14.6 million, Alabama A & M $14.0 million, and North Alabama $13.8 million. The old saying "follow the money" is also true in college athletics, and seems to parallel a school's success.

 The second phase of fan voting for the Major League Baseball All-Star game is underway and Atlanta Braves fans have been loyal to their hometown players as Ronald Acuna was the high vote getter in the first phase with over three million votes and six other Braves advanced to round two. Acuna has already put his name in the starting lineup with his high vote total, while the remaining six teammates aren't really long shots to take the field in the other seven defensive positions. The Braves lead the ballot with six players, while the Dodgers follow with four, and no other team has more than two. Over in the American League the Blue Jays and Rangers both put five players in round two, ad in somewhat of a surprise the Yankees and Astros both saw only one player advance. I am not sure the TV executives would be happy about it, but it would be unique if the National League lineup included seven Atlanta Braves and either Toronto or Texas had six. You can vote early and often. So, let's go Braves!

 In closing.... Elba Tiger golfer John Martin Wilson was all over the news last week as he competed at the Future Masters golf tournament in Dothan, and made all of his Elba fans happy with his strong showing at the international event. Wilson, only 15, competed in the 15-18 age division and more than held his own as he kept his name on the leaderboard. I enjoyed watching his live interviews on TV and urge everyone in Elba to keep up with this talented young man as he gets better and better.
